

CONTEMPORARY BUDDHISM

Online access included with all institutional
subscriptions

An Interdisciplinary Journal

Call for papers

Editors:

Andrew Skilton and Kate Crosby
SOAS, London, UK

Supported by an International Advisory Board

Contemporary Buddhism publishes articles on the current state of Buddhism from across the human sciences. The journal presents work from philosophers, theologians, historians, psychologists, anthropologists, sociologists and political scientists. Contemporary Buddhism examines the historical, doctrinal and political developments that have formed contemporary versions of Buddhism. Contemporary Buddhism is intended to reflect and represent all schools of Buddhism.

For a statement of the ideas that inspired the creation of Contemporary Buddhism download the inaugural editorial by Michael McGhee at www.tandf.co.uk/journals/rcbh

The special features of Contemporary Buddhism are:

- * the meeting of Buddhism and western culture
- * the current self-understanding of different traditions of Buddhism
- * the relations between these traditions
- * the relations to other world religious traditions

How to submit your research

The editors of Contemporary Buddhism will consider for publication articles that are related to the aims and scope of the journal.

Articles for consideration should be sent to:

Andrew Skilton or Kate Crosby, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, Thornhaugh Street, Russell Square, London WC1H 0XG

Manuscripts should be between 4,000-8,000 words in length.

All submissions will be seen anonymously by two referees.

Please ensure your address details are clearly marked on the outside of all packages you are sending to Editors.

For more information, please visit

www.tandf.co.uk/journals/rcbh

'Instructions for Authors,' section.

www.tandf.co.uk/journals/rcbh

• online sample copies • forthcoming articles • free articles • back issues • content alerts • submission details • pricing and ordering

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group